NOMINATION OF GLASS WOULD BE A HAPPY CHOICE

So Declares Woods in Key-note Address to State Democratic Convention

(By The Associated Press.)
NORFOLK, Va., June 11.—Virginia deserves recognition by the Democracy of the nation and the support of a national standard bearer could be made by the New York convention than the nomination of Senator Carter Glass, former Congressman James P. Woods, temporary chairman of the state Democratic convention, declared today in the key-note address prepared for delivery before the body.

The national Democratic convention should select Senator Glass, he stated, because "of what Virginia Democrats stand for and by reason of his own eminent services and fitness."

Reviewing the developments of the past several years, the speaker stated that the Democratic party was in a position to render the country a great service. In scathing terms, he referred to what he termed "the baubling public servants of high and low degree."

"Never have American institutions been called upon to meet a more severe test than they face today," he said. "I say that with the utmost faith in the great future of this country and a half a century ago, I say it with supreme confidence, that finally American ideals of government will emerge from the confusion of today and stand undimmed in the eyes of entire world."

"But only a false patriotism can blind us to the problems of the present. Such an era is impatient with traditions, and forgets ideals. That is why perhaps in our country we seem to have a whole people by groups of men, wealthy and supposedly upright, seeking greater riches, the debauchery of public servants of high and low degree, and the personal convictions of so-called statesmen, anxious to retain or acquire power. It is not necessary to dwell on these occurrences, or to enter into their sordid details."

"Our humbling task is to remind them that they are as much a part of the American people as the man at home. And both there and here, they have been distorted into an indictment of American institutions."

In Europe, the advocates of monarchy point to them as demonstrating the failure of popular government, while, on the other hand, our own domestic and international affairs afford to think that these occurrences afford the opportunity of injecting the poisonous doctrines of Carl Marx and Leon Trotsky into that sacred political philosophy handed down to us by our forefathers."

"The guilty of exploiting the American people and corrupting public officials have done more to breed a spirit of radicalism throughout the land than all the flannel-mouthed red propagandists combined."

"The growth of this spirit during the past three years of Republican rule at Washington cannot be denied. The best evidence of this is found in the status of the Republican party itself. Although its control is nominally in the hands of the reactionary elements, fully twenty-five percent of the Republican members of Congress are committed to only one general program of material socialism, but to a definite program of class and sectional legislation. This important element within that party is closely affiliated and associated with certain radical groups without, and there is no disposition to combine these two kind elements under a single leadership. Even as it is now, in certain sections of the country, radicals of a kind, from faint political voice are presenting a solid voting front."

"In this situation the Democracy has an opportunity such as it has seldom had before—not merely to elect the nation's president, but to elect the nation's president."

"Let us hold firmly to the hope of the nation, for in them lies the hope of the nation."

They are enduring because they are right. They are invincible because they are true.

"Let us wake the American conscience to the importance of simple, unadorned, unpublicized honesty in public office."

"The great principles of honesty, truth and justice in government are eternal."

"Progressive is but another term for the application of these fundamental principles to modern conditions and the ever-growing needs of society. To the Democratic party not only believe it incarnates and applies these principles. It gives a government that keeps step with the march of mankind. It confidently points to its legislative achievements as a forward-moving party. That is the more than one typical example."

"Legislative achievements as a forward-moving party. Time forbids more than one typical example. A current system if ever efficient became so because of the simple principles of equal justice in a system that stood the sudden strain of unprecedented war without financial disturbance, contributed most potently to the finances of our allies, and as a result of that one act, so boldly, ably and courageously sponsored by a Virginia Democrat, when the dust and smoke of war had cleared, we beheld the financial center of the world moved across the Atlantic to our shores and the American dollar the universal unit of value."

"The record of our party in the State, nation is an open book. It not only welcomes, it invites criticism. We, of Virginia, have a special reason to be proud of our party, and of our Americanism. We have held true to the faith. We have not worshipped false gods, nor have we compromised with expediency, and we never will. We would rather fight without them. Our national representatives and our State officials have proved themselves honorable, able and faithful public servants in a period when those qualities of statesmanship have not always been conspicuous throughout the country as a whole."

"Virginia deserves recognition by the Democracy of the nation. Her voice should speak with authority at the council table of the party and the nation. Let us elect her representative."

CONVENTION OF VA. DEMOCRATS ON IN NORFOLK

(By The Associated Press.)
NORFOLK, Va., June 11.—With Senator Carter Glass in the principal role, but sharing honors with Virginia's new law, the State Democratic Convention opened its session here today.

For Glass, a "printer's devil" who has risen to the heights of success, the convention was prepared to inaugurate its determination to the National convention in New York to support him for the presidential nomination.

To Woodrow Wilson, the schoolmaster and president, the convention could only pay tribute—but that tribute was great. The principles for which he stood, his idealism and the fight he made for the League of Nations were kept in the forefront by ever speaking. Time and again, the mention of his name brought applause which interrupted proceedings.

Judge Martin Williams, of Giles, in responding to Mayor Albert L. Rogers' address of welcome, declared that you as the savior of the "fibre savior of American democracy"—Woodrow Wilson.

He paused and faced a portrait of the late president draped with the American flag and upon the platform beneath a blazing white light. The applause was deafening. A few moments later, after reviewing the work of Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Magalhães, and Wilson, Judge Williams referred to the record of the Republican administration and asserted that the "American people are looking to Virginia to furnish a man to lead the nation out of chaos."

"This man," he shouted, "is Carter Glass."

Approximately two thousand persons in the armory, where the convention is being held, rose to their feet, waved handkerchiefs, beat chairs and called for Glass, who was not in the hall, but playing Dixie hardily could be heard.

Platform Presented.
Approval of the Harding-Coolidge plan for America's adherence to the International Court of Justice, a declaration for religious freedom, prohibition for strict enforcement of the prohibition laws, and a denunciation of "Republican quackery" were the principal contents of the platform submitted.

"Transition from the ideals of a Democratic administration to the sordid performances of the last three years at Washington," the platform declared, arraigning the Republican party for "intercepting at every step the due processes of inquiry."

"We regard with unqualified approval the extraordinary message of the President, which challenged the right of the United States Senate to prosecute inquiry into the conduct of public officers suspected of malfeasance or other crimes," it was stated.

Referring to Thomas Jefferson's declaration for religious freedom, the platform declared the principle was "entirely right."

"Any sect or order or creed which assails or seeks openly or covertly to impair this inalienable right of religious freedom is to be condemned and resisted as an enemy to organized society," the platform continued.

The platform also urged relief for the farmer; a reduction in tariff and criticized the "carelessness" of the Republican administration leaders in handling the immigration measure before Congress.

Government Club Sounds Final Note
A. A. Booth, secretary of the Good Government Club, today issued the following statement: "The epilogue of the campaign suggesting further action of the association is the campaign and day morning at 1:15 o'clock when an engine boiler exploded."

The remains are expected to reach here Thursday night and will be conveyed to the home of Mrs. E. S. Hook at 9:30 o'clock after a brief illness of meningitis. Burial will take place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the family burial ground near Mr. Harmon. Flowers were borne by little girl relatives of the deceased.

DEATH OF AN INFANT

SCHOOL BOARD WILL MOVE WITH DESPATCH ON PLANS

One of the immediate results of the success of the school bond issue will be the calling together of the school board to move forward in its plans for spending the $350,000 which became available through the action taken yesterday.

Superintendent W. C. Griggs this afternoon declared that the board probably would await an official announcement from the electoral board to get plans to have been carried out. The board is understood to favor the employment of a local architect, provided he will undertake to collaborate with a school architect of note who has already been here, to which plan he is said to have agreed.

No effort is to be made to rush to completion any given project, but temporary arrangements will be made to take care of the increased enrollment next September and the plans of the board will be carried out systematically. The main projects to be undertaken with the money made available will be the erection of a wing to Union Park school to be used as a junior high school, thus relieving both the graded school and the high school, the repairing and alteration of Belmont with an addition to take care of colored pupils to take the place of Westmoreland which is not only overcrowded but held by some to be actually dangerous.

The board will undertake a study of the equipment and maintenance cost of these new buildings after the building plans have been accepted. One of the most powerful factors in the securing of such a majority for the school bonds, it was said today, was the general familiarity with the schools through contact with their own children who brought conditions home to them through their experiences.

Candidate For Vice President Not Yet Chosen

The "orderly government" plank takes up about 300 words. It makes no specific reference to the oil or recent congressional investigations but includes in substance these assertions: "The party reaffirms its devotion to orderly government and insists that persons who degrade the public service, both in and out of office should be prosecuted."

The sale of official influence should be condemned by the people and prohibited by law.

Wrong doers should be prosecuted without regard to their political affiliations.

The majority of government employees are honest and faithful to their duty and it is a grave wrong to "strive indiscriminately" to besmirch their names, especially for partisan purposes.

The Republican administration already is charged with official dereliction and will continue the work of "discovery and punishment" but will not condone the innocent with the guilty nor prosecute for partisan purposes.

This plank apparently has been practically agreed upon before the subcommittee went into session, for no loud discussion followed its presentation.

Such was not the case, however, when the Klan and agricultural planks were reached. Shouts and arguments which could be heard plainly in the hall outside the committee room ensued.

Senator Norbeck of South Dakota did not mince words in discussing the condition of the farmer and the possible effects it might have upon the Republican party if a strong agricultural plank were not written. Although not a member of the subcommittee, he was called in and came armed with charts and figures. He told the platform drafters plainly that the party was being blamed for the high cost of living and the low cost of farm products. Since the "northwest" is not to be ignored on the ticket, he is under need to have argued, it should be expressed in the platform.

The declaration tentatively accepted was undisturbed by members of the subcommittee to have been viewed by Senator Norbeck as unsatisfactory to at least two senators from northwestern states. Senator Norbeck however is understood to have approved the utterance agreed upon.

Other declarations contained in the platform include:

The administration has reduced taxation and the public debt, instead of a budget system and brought ordinary expenses down to a minimum in three years, preserving the country from bankruptcy in the history of public finance.

Properly, the reduction of the national debt through tax reform and not by the method of the "1900-1910" plan, which has put the country in a worse financial condition than it was in 1900.

The party favors a reduction of the tariff, but it should be adjusted, lowered as far as possible, and the tariff law as now on its feet.

HOOVER GAINING GROUND AS COOLIDGE RUNNING MATE

(Copyright, 1934, by The Bee)
(CLEVELAND, O., June 11.—) Nobody has the vice-presidential assured today but there are certain definite trends. Herbert Hoover's chances seem at the moment better than any one else's but when M. L. Burton of the University of Michigan delivers his oration nominating President Coolidge on Thursday, things may be different. Nothing would make a more likely Coolidge happen than to have his life long friend and admirer, Dr. Burton, named on the ticket with him. The politicians are not solid on the idea of naming an unknown quantity but if objections to the various men named become too vehement they may come to the choice of Dr. Burton as the least objectionable.

Speaking of objections, it is interesting to hear the objections raised by delegates to virtually all the candidates for vice president. Here are some of them. Senator Curtis of Kansas:

Voted to over ride President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus which is hereby in this convention.

Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa: Too much of a radical and it might look as if the regulars were yielding to the western insurgents. Representative Dickinson, of Iowa:

Not well enough known. Representative Sanders, of Indiana: Same thing. Former Governor Lowell of Illinois:

He said he did not want it and he would not take it so the Illinois delegates have grown cold about trying to draft him.

Major General Harbord: Not particularly active in politics and not sufficiently identified with the Republican party in the past to be regarded as a vote getter though his strength with the ex-service men is counted as his main card of advantage.

Herbert Hoover: He is still looked upon by some farmers as having been responsible for the fixing of the price of wheat during the war. The regulars are not getting more for their crop if the government had not intervened. Also, Secretary Hoover's wavering in 1920 when he did not know whether to join the Republican or Democratic party is still held against him by the regulars.

M. L. Burton of Michigan: Unknown but acceptable if Coolidge says so.

Thus does the vice presidential race present itself and after talking with many of the leaders and some members of the Coolidge cabinet, the writer is convinced that if there had been a definite movement organized here for Herbert Hoover he would have won the nomination. As it is, sentiment for him is growing. Some of the Hoover men realize that the service of commerce prefers to run his own department and would feel buried in the vice presidency but there is another angle to that. Mr. Hoover is young. Some who think he may be a presidential candidate in 1928. The main handicap under which he suffers in politics is his identification with the Wilson administration in its appeal for a Democratic Congress in 1918, and his lack of regularity.

To be given a vice presidential nomination by a regular Republican convention would for all time sweep away the objection and if by chance he were elected it is a serious question whether his executive ability would be forgotten in so short a period as four years. The story is told here that Herbert Hoover, vice president, is not so sure of his own popularity as he once was. The ticket (Coolidge and Hoover) has fascinated some of the Coolidge managers. With one man from Massachusetts and the other from California, the idea of geographical breadth in the ticket is something important in politics.

It may even be more so this year with a candidate from New England at the top of the ticket and the west clamoring for recognition. The main thing is that the ticket is being characterized by the same spirit of defiance of the LaFollette group as has been manifested on the convention floor itself. Incidentally when Representative Burton was nominated, the third parties and the need for solidarity and everybody was looking at the Wisconsin delegation and urging its members to stand up and cheer. Governor Blaine, of Wisconsin called across the aisle to the Pennsylvania delegation where Secretary of the treasury Mellon was sitting. What you fellows want is not solidarity but solid dollar. Some delegates thought they had seen a picture of a governor say (Solid-Daughter). But the chances are he meant the former anyhow. To all of which should be added the significant fact that wheat went up four and a half cents a bushel yesterday. The main reason for this is that the wheat is a piece of political information for as the price of wheat ascends and the Canadian crop appears to be lower than last year the chances of a more contented agricultural sector grow. And that should be the case, the regulars here felt they would be justified in worrying less and less about LaFollette and the revolt of the west.

NEGRESS CLEARED OF KILLING HER SISTER

That Victoria Williams, colored, died of heart failure and was not killed by a blow on the head by her sister, was the substance of a verdict by the coroner's jury returned this morning after an inquiry made into the woman's death and as a result, Luella Smith alias Garland and Tony McCain, colored, held in connection with the woman's death were released.

The incident took place Monday evening at the home of Mary Johnson, colored, at 1015 E. 10th St. Luella, alias Garland quarreled and finally became engaged in a fight during which the former was struck on the head with a stick. She died suddenly within a few moments. McCain was present at the time, and the two arrests followed.

The Garland woman testified this morning that she was in her room, when her sister came home. She refused to admit her at first but after she did, a quarrel followed, then she struck her sister with the stick.

Examination of the body by Coroner Dr. J. E. Taylor disclosed that only a minor bruise on the forehead had been sustained. It was held that this was of little consequence to have killed the woman, and that the shock and excitement resulting from the fight was too much for her weak heart and she dropped dead.

The following verdict was returned by the jury: "She came to her death as a result of organic heart disease following a fight with Luella Smith alias Garland and Tony McCain, colored, held in connection with the woman's death were released."

There are almost 2,500,000 persons employed in the motor industry and allied lines.

Drives out Roaches to be swept up dead

Modern preparation assures housewife her home is free from pests

At last the careful housewife can know that her home is free from roaches and other insect pests. Hereafter her efforts along this line have been attended with disquieting uncertainties. Just when she believed the last roach was dead, along would come another to prove her work was in vain.

Now the modern home-maker merely sprays. Dethol thoroughly enters the crevices where she believes roaches are hiding—and then waits a few seconds to see them come running out, where a few more sprays quickly destroy the last one.

Due to the fact that Dethol is a liquid spray, it penetrates even the thinnest cracks, along baseboards and around kitchen drains, where roaches hide and breed. The first few sprays destroy an unseen score and the adult roaches scurry into the open to be killed with ease. Periodic sprayings with Dethol insure the fact that your home is absolutely free from these disgusting pests.

Dethol is the modern, efficient destroyer of all kinds of life. It kills flies, mosquitoes, roaches, ants, mites, bedbugs, etc., instantly. And it is safe. It does not stain. Sprayed lightly on windows, tubs, the marble, enamel ware, etc. Dethol also cleans like magic—you simply wipe off the sprayed articles with a damp rag. Sprayed in misty places about the home, Dethol speedsily purifies and disinfects the air.

Drug, grocery, hardware and department stores sell Dethol in the 4-ounce and 16-ounce packages complete with sprayer and large can of Dethol for 50c.

You really cannot afford to be without Dethol. If your dealer has no Dethol, we will send you the 4-ounce package, post free, on receipt of one dollar. Dethol Mfg. Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

TODAY'S Washington LETTERS

By HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Not the least of the considerations entering into the pre-convention maneuvering of Democratic chieftains are the ages of the respective candidates for the presidential nomination.

For the purposes of these leaders, the individuals considered as "possibilities" are merely pawns in a game, to be advanced or withdrawn as the exigencies of the play proceeds. Neither sentiment nor personal loyalty is permitted to stand in the way of making the play that promises to bring success to the particular interests or groups behind the game.

This matter of age enters into the plans of the play through the coolly considered possibility that the man put at the top of the ticket might not live out his term.

Falling to get across the particular man or set of men they desire as the nominee for president, it might then become preferable to help boost into first place the man most likely to succumb to his years and the burdens of the office, seeking to get into second place on the ticket the man or type of man they would really prefer as president.

Of the dozen or more leading and "dark horse" candidates in the running at New York, five are more than 60 years of age.

McAdoo is the youngest of the sexagenarians. He was born Oct. 31, 1863. He is physically the most active. Due to his temperament and his physical fitness, his age is no handicap. He has the sinewy wiriness of a bronchi and the physical keenness of the average man of 40.

Underwood comes next, with 62 years behind him. He is well preserved, well poised, somewhat phlegmatic, he is the sort that passes three-score and ten with reasonable security.

Walsh of Montana, at 65, also would be a good insurance risk. He feels, as he looks, more nearly 55.

Glass of Virginia, who is rumored as the favorite of McAdoo, is 61. Due to his age, he cannot land the nomination, was 56 last January. He is small, wiry, physically as tough as sole leather.

Last, and oldest of the five, is Samuel Mottet Ralston of Indiana.

Much has been written of Ralston's age and his handicap to his nomination. No one has raised that issue against Glass, although Ralston is only one month and four days older. He was 66 on Dec. 1.

But Ralston is a big, heavy-bodied man, and his years appear at least to rest more heavily upon him.

And there is where the favor of the boys who may be forced to prefer long shot to achieve their desires comes in.

Take the wets, for instance. Falling to put across Smith or some equally open wet for the top of the ticket, it is suggested that Ralston is not a strength to the ticket. Ralston is not a wet, he's a Hoosier Presbyterian.

But the nomination of Ralston for first place might open the door to Ritchie of Maryland or Silver or New Jersey for second place. Both are wets.

The final result would be left in the hands of Fate.

ITALIANS HOPE FOR ENTRANCE TO AMERICA

ROME, June 10.—An even 100 Italians arrived today at Naples on the Colombo, hoping to be able to take back their families to the United States under the emigration ruling of the New York court before the decision was reached. The Italians landed today in great numbers. They have called President Coolidge and the Italian ambassador in Washington. They have visited newspaper offices in Naples and have prepared a memorandum to Signor De Michelis, emigration commissioner begging him to approach the American consul through the ambassador so they may be allowed to return with their families, or failing in that, be included with preference in the next quota.

MUCH DEBATE OVER INCLUSION KLAN PLANK

Trick Umbrellas and Fancy Dog Collars

CHOKER AND HAT BAND TO MATCH, EACH FASHIONED FROM A DOG COLLAR, AND COMBINATION VANITY BOX AND UMBRELLA.

By MARIAN HALE

A shortage of dog collars threatens. This condition is due, not to a plethora of pups, but of fashionable women who have suddenly discovered how very smart this accessory of Fido's really is.

And whereas one dog wear one collar at a time, the smart woman doubles and wears two, so you can see where the poor canines are going to come out in the matter.

The latest sartorial sensation in Paris is the matching choker and hat.

band, each formed of a dog collar. The photograph above shows you just how effective such a set may be when bordered on each side with a band of white monkey fur over black.

For sports costumes, street frocks, and almost every type of dress except the strictly formal sort such an adornment is most desirable. And there is this advantage, the dog collar at its most exorbitant figure is much cheaper than the silver fox.

Another innovation is the combination vanity box and umbrella. Everyone knows how hard it is to stay beautifully rouged and powdered during the sort of weather we have had all spring.

This new umbrella contains all the make-up makings the most fastidious woman requires, with a fair sized mirror as well, all packed neatly beneath the surface of the tooled leather handle.

Furthermore, it dispenses with necessity for a handbag entirely, since besides the essentials of the complexion, it also provides a small compartment for small change and even a bill or so, if it is compactly rolled.

KLANSMEN ON TRIAL IN PENNSYLVANIA

(By The Associated Press.)

EDENSBURG, Pa., June 10.—A pistol taken by Klansmen from the Klan special train after its return to Johnstown from the Lilly demonstration was identified today at the trial of 44 men upon charges of riot and unlawful assembly as having been loaned to Roy Rippe, one of the defendants, said to be a Klansman. A riot before the Lilly parade. A few days before the Lilly parade, a riot between villagers and visiting Klansmen occurred during the demonstration and three Lilly men met death.

Joseph Troxel identified the pistol as his property and testified he had loaned it to Rippe before the Lilly parade. Officers who met the train testified that 42 pistols were taken from the train when it arrived in Johnstown. Some of them, they testified, were found on the alleged Klansmen when arrested, but others were found in coaches. Only the one pistol was exhibited to the jury.

A sensation was sprung during the afternoon when Judge Thomas B. Finletter ordered the court room cleared of spectators after an outburst of applause had greeted the admission by George A. Marks, a clerk that he had been a Klansman since birth.

Marks testified that he was present at the Lilly demonstration and declared that on the way back from the Hillside where a cross was burned, he and a number of other Klansmen were attacked. A crowd gathered about them. Marks testified, jeering and yelling. One of them struck him he said after some one in the crowd had demanded that he remove his glasses. Marks declared that all the Klansmen in his division had their masks "up" explaining that their faces were visible.

SPREAD OF CRIME AMONG CHILDREN IS ALARMING

By ROBERT T. SMALL
(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

NEW YORK, June 10.—Expert criminologists are non-plussed at the rapid spread of crime among what may be termed the children of the country. The unbelievable murder of the Franks boy in Chicago by two youths of 19 years has served merely as a climax to a long record of crimes by boys and girls too far that matter, which has been piling up in every large city during the past five or six years.

Scarcely a day goes by here in New York that some lad, but recently in long pants is taken into the toils of the law for some daring or reckless defiance of the state drules of society.

Lingering in the hospital today, a bullet wound in his head, is a body of 17—a "holdup man." The lad was caught red-handed in an effort to rob a jewelry store in broad daylight. The arrest of a boy of the same age is nothing of the ordinary, but this case was interesting because Howard Weiss says the last ten years of his life have been spent in crime. This means he left the straight and narrow path at the age of seven.

Cecelia Cooney, New York's notorious hobbled hair bandit, now doing her bit up the river, said that she, too, had been sent out on the streets at even a younger age than that. Weiss told the police today that he had lived in Los Angeles but he did not remember his parents because he was a young man when he got to getting a living which seemed natural to him. Rather boastfully the boy told of having done "jobs" in Portland, Ore., Vancouver, B. C., Seattle, San Francisco and various smaller cities. When asked by a policeman as he was attempting to escape it was found the boy's worldly wealth consisted of two revolvers and a pawn ticket for a watch.

The police are at a loss to know just what the youth of the country are but that it is flaming there is no doubt. Some of New York's boldest crimes have been committed by boys in their teens or early twenties. Bank messengers have been shot down by them in cold blood. Highway robbery appears to have the greatest appeal to the criminals of supposedly tender years. The boy with the gun is giving more trouble to the police of New York today than almost any other criminal.

Girls go in for shoplifting as a rule and some of these have told the juvenile court that they have been pilfering since they were eight or nine years of age.

Not only is youth rampant in overt criminal acts, but the traffic courts of the city are filled with young men and women arrested for speeding. Even Miss Abbey Rockefeller, the 21-year-old granddaughter of old John D. himself, could not resist the call for the dazzling pace and twice was taken into custody for breaking the speed limit on an exceedingly small fraction. Needless driving almost invariably is traced to mere boys or some other sort of liquor in the party.

Every city and town in the country has its modern problem of dealing with youth. There never has been a time when youth has so freely found expressions. The extent to which parents are responsible for the manners and customs of children which some times grow into criminal acts can only be conjectured.

Eminent doctors, who specialize in studies of the brain, both normal and abnormal, have agreed at their convention in Atlantic City that the Chicago boys who murdered Robert Franks might have conducted themselves as law-abiding citizens if something had not gone wrong with their earlier training. Just where modern parents fall in the upbringing of their offspring, the doctors have not disclosed but they place at the heart of the wild flings that youth is having today. Too much indulgence, too much liberty, too much spending money, too many automobiles and too little chaperonage—all these are the customary explanations of the wild life that is being led by what the doctors call children.

The spirit of adventure burns stronger today than at any time in the history of the country. Youth is being served as never before. In the British flying corps during the world war they would not take boys over 23 years of age. They wanted the recklessness and the abandon of youth; they wanted flyers who would not count the cost. These same youthful traits which serve so well in battle are rampant today, as the criminal records of every big city will show.

LEGENDRE CAPTURES FINAL PENTATHLON

(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, June 10.—Robert Legendre, of the Newark Athletic Club, former intercollegiate champion, today captured the final Olympic pentathlon tryout from a crack field of all-round stars. Legendre finished first in three of the five events contested, the javelin, discus and broad jump and had a minimum total of ten points for his performances. Morton Kaser, University of Southern California, and Clifford Argue, Occidental College, Los Angeles, finished in a tie for second place with twenty points each while Charles West, Washington and Jefferson, present intercollegiate champion, and A. B. Leggett, United States naval academy were tied for fourth place with 22 points each.

The sixth and last entrant to figure in the final standing was Anthony Wootroff, Newark A. C., who sprang a surprise by winning the 1,500 metre run.

Two of the outstanding competitors, Beatus Hamilton, of Kansas City, and Ned Gourdin, of Worcester, Mass., were forced to withdraw when they pulled tendons in the broad jump. James Henigan, of Worcester, Mass., finished second; John Gray of New York, third, and A. A. Studenroth of Philadelphia, fourth. Verne Booth of Johns Hopkins University, intercollegiate champion, was withheld from the race by Coach Tom Keen. Booth will compete in the 2-mile and 10,000 metre runs at Boston Saturday and it is understood that he will be named on the cross-country team.

In New York

NEW YORK, June 11.—In one of Broadway's rollicking musical shows, a pretty girl with an appealing voice and alluring figure scampers about to the enjoyment of packed houses.

After the theater she rushes to one of the intimate supper clubs and long into the dim hours of the morning adds to the merriment of those "making the rounds."

She has a happy smile and a helping hand for everyone.

Yet she has more than her share of sorrow.

Her husband, who a year ago was her partner in big musical productions, is in a Chicago sanitarium, suffering with a nervous complaint.

She must work at two jobs that he may have the best of care.

"Smookey Joe" Martin, acting chief of the New York Fire Department has been in the service 40 years. He became a hoseman at 30.

Through all the excitement he has lived, attending every big fire in New York, he never has lost his composure.

To meet him, one might imagine him a walking advertisement for cures for nervousness.

"The Chief" has as much hair as a moving picture hero, and not a wispy of it is gray.

All the "Noah's Ark" street cars aren't doing service in small towns. On the Second Avenue line, here in New York, they have "one-man trolleys" of a vintage that antedates any the writer has ever seen in the smallest hamlet.

And my mid-western clothes must not be so antiquated here in the big town.

For three evenings hand running now, an old clothes man has gently edged his way up to me and queried: "Any old clothes for sale, mister?"

Here in New York, that is considered the acme of success.

DODGERS AROUSE FEELING OF JAPS

(Copyright by Chicago Tribune.)
TOKYO, June 10.—Anti-American agitators continue to flood the city with dodgers abusing Americans and arousing the feelings of the Japanese. Two or three times daily flag bedecked automobiles dash through the streets scattering hundreds of thousands of printed appeals. A typical dodger was scattered about this noon, signed by the Lashin Society, meaning "Single spirit" and saving.

"Arise, patriots who love the fatherland. It was for no reason other than to abuse the Japanese that Congress passed its immigration bill. This reason is clear, showing that Americans refuse to accept our countrymen because they despise the yellow race. That is the American way of spitting in our face and striking our head. Such is the method many of our countrymen desire to emulate, dreaming of foreign customs, drinking in a foreign manner without considering the heavy costs to Japan of money and credit.

"We must give anxious thought to the deplorable situation, the likes whereof we had before the C. no-Japanese and Russo-Japanese war. But the harp karp of a brave patriot news where of was like a bolt out of blue demonstrates that the Yamato (A name for ancient Japanese people) spirit still lives.

The present and future tendency is beyond the power of the individual to change. We must co-operate, wielding our whole strength for a settlement of the American question. We must render every effort, with the imperial family as a center, in a proper, sober manner.

"We also desire to uplift the national spirit. We do not want war, and must refrain from any barbarous measures, causing possible disturbances. The Yankee is crying for humanity with his mouth, but the poisonous sword in his hand is the enemy of the nation. Arise, people. The spirit of the rising sun still lives and can not lose."

The trade boycott wave is assuming large proportions, while the public sentiment against America is growing hourly. Nothing approaching attempted violence is reported, and the correspondent visiting a number of public places yesterday to experiment, met nothing personally unpleasant. Everywhere, however, he found the exclusion the main topic of conversation—in train crowds, restaurant waiters, hotel lobbyists, and theater crowds. The majority of American residents are very nervous.

The owners of the largest movie circuits yesterday decided to withdraw American films on July 1, which movement seems likely to become national. The movie houses say a plentiful supply of German films is available. A foreign proprietor of one of the largest photographic houses in Tokyo has a large window card in Japanese announcing that the house is under English ownership and urging the people not to mistake it for American.

50 GERMAN POLITICAL PRISONERS RELEASED

(Copyright, 1924, by Chicago Tribune.)
BERLIN, June 10.—The Bergium occupational authorities today released fifty German political prisoners arrested during the passive resistance in the Ruhr in 1923. It is hoped that this the first step in going back to normal relationship between the military forces in the occupied zone and the population, and will be followed by similar measures on a broader scale. Official and international believe it is the first practical step of the Dawes suggestion, and it greatly to improve the situation of Franco-Belgium-German understanding.

Not only the nationalists, but members of the German cabinet are continually stressing the necessity of relieving political prisoners, who 40,000,000 people continually think of as martyrs to the German cause. Their martyrdom ceased one of the best sentimental arguments of the nationalists against the Dawes report is gone, and the government can go ahead.

There is little illiteracy in the state. With its splendid roads, large and thriving cities, Tennessee is very prosperous and progressive.

Manufacturing—Agriculture—Mining—Live Stock—Fruit

The leading industries of East Tennessee are coal, iron, zinc, copper and marble mining. There are some very large textile mills. A great deal of blooded stock is raised in Tennessee. Poultry and small fruits are well-paying side lines. Large areas of Tennessee are devoted to burley tobacco growing and diversified farming. An abundance of cheap water power makes the Eastern section attractive to industries.

Middle Tennessee is a rich agricultural and live stock section—especially mules and hogs; and this section has large manufactories. West Tennessee, with its unusually fertile soil, is a large producer of corn, cotton, cotton seed and grist mill products. Tennessee ranks second in the United States in the production of hardwood lumber and its products. This section of the State contains a large variety of manufacturing plants.

For the Game's Sake

By LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK, June 11.—One of the most interesting developments of the Olympic trials no win progress in this section, is the fact that affairs relating to track and field are being left to the men who really know something about them—the coaches.

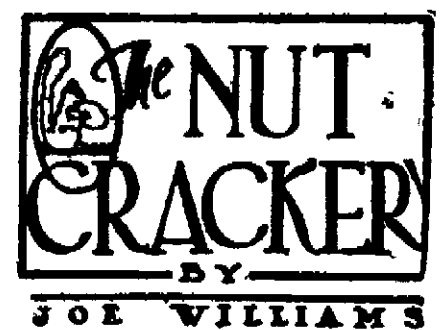

This is unprecedented. Also it is important. It means a great deal, so far as our prestate in world athletics is concerned.

When Loren Murchison, the great sprinter, showed signs of suffering from recent over-work, Lawson Robertson, the head coach, withdrew him from the final heat.

Robertson knew what Murchison could do, and it was not necessary to kill the man in order to get a new demonstration. Cord Taylor, at the Yankee stadium failed even to qualify in his specialty but Robertson, who knew the things of which this athlete will be capable when he is right picked him to go on to the finals at Cambridge next Friday and Saturday despite his poor showing in the preliminaries.

Incidents such as these interested followers of track affairs who are inclined to delve beneath the surface of things and investigation revealed that the coaches upon the occasion of the 124 Olympics are the kings.

Nothing that gives greater warrant for hope as regards the United States in the coming Olympics as well as future international meets, has in the writer's opinion, ever happened.

The most remarkable thing about the uprising of the Red Sox is that no bright young reporter has yet referred to Lee Fohl as a miracle man.

Further proof that a business depression exists is to be seen in the fact that Peggy Joyce's newest husband is not a millionaire.

Chicago's young intellectual murder suspects think golf is a silly game. This observation is bound to win them a lot of sympathy.

No one ever heard of a 100-yard dash star getting sore because he was called a flash.

The National Cheese Association will hold its convention in July and of course Mike McGuire, champion of the light heavies, will be among those present.

Despite the fact that Bill Tilden has throat trouble he is still the talk of the tennis world.

After waiting 137 years the Derby family finally put over a winner in England's big horse race. Maybe Joe Beckett still has a chance.

In this great, noble country boy has a chance to be president, but happily, it isn't compulsory.

INABILITY OF MURPHYS TO HIT ACCOUNTS FOR TWO LOSSES TO TWINS

LEADERS TAKE DOUBLE DEFEAT FROM TAIL-ENDERS
HIGH POINT, June 10.—High Point, league leaders in the Piedmont, was trounced twice here this afternoon by Raleigh, the tailenders. The Capitals easily composed the first game by the score of 9 to 1 and won the second, an abbreviated affair of seven innings, 4 to 2. Elliott, who allowed the hard hitting Pointers only three mealy hits in the first game. Pitcher Gheen, who hit a homer over centerfield fence in the eighth was the only Pointer who reached as far as second base.

In the second contest Elliott bested the veteran Rube Eldridge and the Caps again won. Although Elliott allowed the Furniture Makers eight bingles, he kept them well scattered, while the visitors bunched hits and scored four runs off seven bingles. Thompson, an outfielder, scored from Cleveland, played center for Raleigh and showed up well.

May Allison Returns to Screen

MAY ALLISON, WHO RETURNS TO SCREEN AFTER TWO YEARS

By THE NEA PLAY JURY NEW YORK, June 10.—"The Fatal Wedding," now playing at the Ritz Theater, is produced just as it was 23 years ago, and the modern audience enjoys it just as thoroughly, though from a somewhat different viewpoint.

Two decades ago "The Fatal Wedding" was a serious piece. The audience would weep when the policeman was about to arrest the little girl whose mother was sick and starving. The villain's devilry would send a shudder through those who had paid 10, 20 or 30 cents admission.

Now the whole thing is, of course, a burlesque, and this juror wonders if our serious drama of today won't seem like burlesque to theatergoers of 1947.

Before the show starts many signs requesting ladies to take their hats off, to refrain from loud talking, etc., are flashed on a screen. Before each curtain is lowered on the scene, a whistle blows shrilly. And each appearance of the villain is the signal for violent hisses.

To finish the picture one finds carriages waiting outside the theater in place of taxis, and so intoxicated with laughter is the audience, that some people actually get in and out of their seats to see the play.

During one of the intermissions, an illustrated song is sung and this juror joined with the rest in the chorus.

It's a complete revival of everything except the price of admission.

May Allison is tackling the herculean task of a new start in motion pictures. Few screen players have been able to regain their popularity after once quitting the screen. Popularity of this sort is dependent on a continuous appeal to the masses who patronize the jumping flickers.

Our old friend Valentino, not absent from the screen as long as May has been, also faces the same problem.

Miss Allison left the screen for a vacation two years ago. Unlike Valentino, she dropped completely from the public prints.

Her new picture is "The River Road." The hero is a member of the Coast Guard Service and for the first time the government has loaned coast guard equipment and personnel to the movies.

And while the jury is considering affairs of the shadow stage it deliberates for a moment on the future of the cinema.

Behold Mr. Sidney ent. Mr. Kent earns his comfortable livelihood by inducing exhibitors to display Paramount pictures. While the Paramount publicity phalanx shouts at the top of its voice how far photoplays have advanced as an art, Mr. Kent tells the exhibitors that "the title is long, the picture is long."

Then he points with pride to the following list of titles: "Manhandled," "The Enemy Sex," "Changing Husbands," "Unquarred Women," "The Fast Set," "A Sainted Devil," "Forbidden Paradise," "The Golden Bed," "Locked Doors," "Open All Night" and "Argentine Love."

There is no doubt that the art of the motion picture continues to advance. However, the box office is a year-old intelligence to witness the advance.

Youths Will Enter Their Pleas Today

(By The Associated Press.) CHICAGO, June 10.—The first big move in the legal battle to save Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb from the gallows for kidnapping and killing young Robert Franks III came tomorrow when the youths sons of Chicago millionaires will enter pleas of not guilty to indictments charging kidnapping for ransom and murder, each crime punishable by death.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, said today that he will ask that the charge of kidnapping for ransom go to trial first and that the state will insist that the youths be placed on trial by July 15, the earliest date possible under the law.

Defense attorneys have not indicated their action tomorrow except to state that pleas of not guilty will be entered.

Meanwhile the state, which has declared it has a "clear hanging case" against the two university students who have confessed kidnapping the son of a neighbor for a ransom of $10,000 and then killing him to provide excitement, continued to exert its efforts to gather evidence that the youths will assert both boys were insane when they committed the crime.

A score of students and friends of the boys were questioned by the state's attorney today as were some of the faculty members of the university they attended.

Two detectives were today dispatched to Ann Arbor, Mich., to trace the lives of the boys while they were students there and others were sent to Clairsville, Michigan, where the Loeb family has a summer home.

Ownership of the typewriter on which the youths wrote the ransom letters to Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, and which was found in a lair where they said they were hiding today to a student at the University of Michigan, which school Loeb had once attended. The owner had reported the machine stolen last Christmas.

NOTED BANDIT DYING

(Copyright 1936 by Chicago Tribune.) MOROCCO, June 10.—Raisuli, the world famous Moroccan bandit is dying near his home at Tamarat at the age of 58. Raisuli gained international prominence when he kidnapped an American woman near Tangier, holding her for $50,000 ransom, which the sultan of Morocco paid himself rather than bring American military intervention following former President Roosevelt's grim demand for the American alive or Raisuli dead.
